Hist

Most ranchers have used the West Desert of Utah for their winter ranges for their sheep.

(This West Desert extended from Tooele on the north to Delta Utah on the south, and from the Oquirrh Mountains on the east, to the Nevada State Line, on the west).

Parley Probst and Clarence Probst ran their sheep clear to the Nevada State Line.

The Colemans ran their sheep on the East Desert below Duchesne and down along the Green River.
